TRAINING PERIOD NEARLY FINISHED

MICHIGAN NATIONAL GUARD
HAD WONDERFUL SEASON

National Guardsmen are just about closing up their annual training period. In act some regiments have already departed and others are leaving today and tomorrow. Major Gen. Guy M. Wilson says this has been the best camp of them all. They accomplished more real progress in their training.

While it has been hard work for the men and officers all have benefited in many ways. The outdoor training work puts the men in fine physical condition. Gen. Wilson says the camp has been unusually healthy and but few minor accidents.

Governor's Review
The big day of camp for the public is review day when all units of the National Guard pass in review of the Governor of the state, the commanding general and his staff officers and other associate officers. This was held last Sunday afternoon.

At 2:30 o'clock Gov. Fred Green and General Wilson rode onto the parade grounds followed by their staffs. All about the fringe of the big parade ground were Guard units waiting their turn to pass, led to do so. And the officers and the reviewing officers, boys in khaki are going to be mis- first parade ground in front of these groups where they were received in military form.

Then the first group appeared. lead by their band and others and other bands followed in quick succession. It took over an hour for all to pass, and the cavalry coming last charged down the green sward at a pace that would strike terror to any foe.

Then after all were past, the 32nd air squadron came swooping in a low graceful curve over the path the other units had followed. While this was going on high above the parade ground two pilots were doing their stuff. Just about every known flying stunt was pulled off by these two daring airmen, much to the amazement of the thousands who were watching.

Memorial Day Service
At 10:00 o'clock Sunday morning memorial services were held for the 32d Division war dead. Attorney General Wilbur H. Brucker, a former guardman, spoke on preparedness.

"All of us join in hoping for a continuance of peace," he said. "The true soldier honestly hates war. We have tasted war, and a little bit of it goes a long way. We know its horrors and its dangers. We will do our utmost thing to avoid it. But we must refuse to hide our heads like cistichs in the sand and say that we can buy peace with timidity."

"We do not need a large standing army of professional soldiers, but we do need citizen-soldiers who think enough of their country to volunteer for her. We need to teach our young men what a rifle is and how to use it. We want them to have a training that will not only develop a strong, robust physique, but will give them a clear conception of American principles."

Monday morning saw a decided change from the daily training program. Equipped for field service with an imaginary enemy advancing from Mackinaw City, and whom already were in possession of the "Three Sister Hills," a realistic warfare campaign was carried out.

the regular army officers to do the planning of the work. And so on this occasion showed his master hand. He shuffled the deck and out of the deal came many surprises.

Other drastic orders were issued and soon lines of guards were seen taking their stations about the camp. A strategic plan was designed and carried out. All day and all night secret messages were transmitted and received. Officers studied seriously over many problems. At 4:30 a. m. an attack began. The battle raged all day and by nightfall the Three Sister hills had been regained and the enemy defeated. Only actual bullets could have made this part of the training more warlike. But this was far from play for officers and men were held responsible for any miscarriage of duty and mistakes.

The 1929 encampment is nearly over. It has been altogether too short. Most of the men and officers big parade ground were Guard units waiting their turn to pass, led to do so. And the officers and the reviewing officers, boys in khaki are going to be mis- first parade ground in front of these groups where they were received in military form.

WOMAN'S CLUB PLAY A BIG SUCCESS

Perhaps one of the best home talent productions since the old days of "Fifi" and "Mid Summer Nights Dream" was presented Tuesday and Wednesday nights in the High School Auditorium. It was great. There was a collection of wit, humor, pathos, and dance all of which went off with the snap of a well trained cast.

We didn't find a drag in the whole show. After the sleepless nights and very strenuous training the success of the play must be extremely satisfying to the participants.

The first scene is laid in the college studio of two young hopefuls, Bob Adair, and artist, and Sydney Hope, well, a playwright. At the rise of the curtain Bob dressed in artists smock, is seen busy on his prize picture and the right chorus girls dressed in trousers, smocks and tany and carrying paint brushes and palettes are lined up across the front of the stage. They sang and danced to "We are working in the studio" and "Learning how to paint."

Four models representing types of girls enter. They were Marguerite Hanson in evening clothes, Marie Schmidt in sport clothes, Ella Hanson in riding habit and Norma Pochelon as a gypsy girl. But Bob who is already extremely annoyed with girls is not interested in spite of the urging by his roommate, Syd. As the act progresses we find that the girls are ever persistent but Bob maintains his indifference. For as Bob tells his two old maid aunts, Prudence and Debby, his heart is reserved for an old-fashioned girl worthy of his mother's memory.

Syd comes in then all excited about his play and gives Bob his costume which consists of a red wig, short trousers and a red vest. As he is trying it on Arabella enters. She is a charming child, stolen and brought up by the gypsies. But she has just found the trite and comes to Bob's room in search of her lost dog. She calls Bob "Robin Redbreast" because his red vest reminds her of her friends in the woods. Bob sees in her his ideal girl, gives her his locket and has her promise to keep it until he returns. Then he sends her off to his aunts, the Topincofts, who need a little girl, he says. Accompanied by the chorus girls, Arabella does a gypsy dance and is off.

The setting for the second scene, act two, is splendid. We're wondering where such properties were ever found. There is an old-fashioned settee, an oil lamp, portrait pictures and every detail that makes up an early American home. Debby and Prudence with powdered hair, long skirts and tight waists sit primly packing the missionary barrel. Josh, their brother appears and if you didn't see him then you've missed half of your life. With one leg dragging, cornob pipe, wig, and a typical drawl he's perfect. His lack of sympathy for his sisters' project brings many laughs. For instance he holds up an egg beater and says "It must be a pleasure for you wimmin to send such useful articles to the heathen." Then Arabella enters. She is scorned by the sisters, who fear for their matrimonial prospects with a child in the house. But Josh takes her part and insists on adopting her. He takes one of the contributions to the barrel and gives it to the gypsy maid to put on. While she is gone the packing committee "blows their pipes" and sing "The Ladies Aid" and its a scream. The meeting is no more than a procession of peace-loving women comes out with the news that there is a child in the house. Think of it; a child in the house of two old maids. Just then Arabella herself arrives and because Josh insists that she stay the old maid and a gossip stalk out heads in the air. ## RELATIVES WIN WOOD WILL CASE

The law in the contested will case of Mrs. J. Wood returned a verdict of $250,000 in favor of the plaintiffs, Albert B. Wood and Jeanie, Houston, brother and sister of the deceased. The jury went in at about 1 o'clock Wednesday afternoon and returned a verdict at 4 o'clock.

They were taken by Judge Guy Smith with orders to appear in court at 10 o'clock the following morning and there to answer the verdict.

The case, as explained in former articles, was appealed from probate court where two wills had been filed. The first one bequeathed an annuity of $200 per month to Albert B. Wood of Jackson, Mich., and $100 per month to Jeanie, Houston, of Rochester, Mich., and their sister, and Jeanie, Houston, brother and sister of the deceased. Then the second will to be filed and decided that the time has come and his old wig and costume and the claimed to be the last will and testament of the deceased.

NO CREAM transforms the skin. But scientific care, which encourages swift circulation through the tissues and keeps the skin cells vividly healthy, will make your skin clear, soft and firm. This is the foundation of the Elizabeth Arden method. Cleansing the skin with Elizabeth Arden's Vanishing Cream — removes impurities which clog the pores and cause blackheads. Brisk patting with Arden's Skin Tonic and Special Astringent gives the skin a firm, healthy glow. Nourishing with Orange Skin Food or the delicate Vitamin Cream fills out the skin cells and so corrects lines and wrinkles. Follow this same method in the care of your skin at home.

THIRTEEN BILLIONS FOR CRIME
Crime, according to Wade Ellis of the American Bar Association's Crime Commission, costs the United States $13,000,000,000 a year.

We have 12,000 murders annually. 50 times the number recorded in Great Britain. Since 1900 our murder rate has increased 350 per cent.

The causes of crime are many and foremost among them Mr. Ellis places our multiplicity of laws which, by simple mathematics, has increased the total of crimes. Every new law breeds new criminals, decreases respect for society and places new burdens on our courts of justice.

It is a disheartening fact that the great majority of our citizens take crime more or less as a matter of course. What is needed is an active public consciousness that will force a simplification and reform of our laws and legal system, and oppose the tendency to pile more enactments on the already bulging statute books. Too many laws touch the good citizen and fail to discomfort the criminal. The sole test for any law is whether it protects society and punishes or reforms the underworld. We must return to first principles in our war against crime.

DOCTORS BY THE MONTH

Sickness is now being sold on the installment plan. That is, you may buy an operation on the part payment method. A finance company in Chicago is offering its services to physicians and those patients who cannot pay all, may pay some at a time. We imagine that many an operation is given without anything down or anything after. The doctors are more interested in relief than in money. People will pay for cars and forget their sickness. They will buy pleasure and let the physician go. If the new plan should work out to bring more money for the doctors, we are for it.

Sickness represents a tremendous cost—not only to individuals and families, but to the nation as well. It has been computed that the average doctor's bill for each person in the cities is $25 a year. Investigation shows that the cost is the same in the country.

The cost of sickness is also to be measured in lost time and wages. There is another element that is very large.

Sickness also takes its toll of misery and suffering—a toll that cannot be computed by any material standard. The cause of public health is a great—a worthy cause.

USEFUL WEATHER

An editorial Pollyanna, writing for a New York newspaper, during the recent hot spell in the Metropolis, lists the blessings of warm weather. Ice, bath tubs, amazing variety of foods, and ice cream, he says, would never have been promoted to their present extensive use in this country.

If it were not for the three months in every year when Americans endure a summer temperature beyond anything that Europe knows.

The answer that comes first to mind is "Is THAT so?" What of the tropics? Hot weather there lasts the year 'round, but who, in any American community in July or August, would consider that a blessing? And if one is going to argue in this optimistic fashion why not rejoice over the cold weather of winter in northern states? That has produced furnaces and snow shovels and woolen underwear and a host of other useful things.

It's a stimulating climate, anyhow. A French writer a few years ago even attributed prohibition to our climate. Americans never were interested in the mild alcoholic beverages, he says. They had to drink the strong ones to counteract the vigorous climate. The potent drinks led to excesses and they, in turn, led to prohibition.

Apparently the weather is not only a good topic for conversation, but also a scapegoat on which to blame our mistakes and a spur to drive us on to noble deeds and great inventions.—Alpena News.

OPPORTUNITY

The life of Americans who have contributed to industry is wonderfully interesting.

Here is one man, for instance, who worked out a way to get more gasoline out of crude oil. He had to break up the molecules, but he did it. What a wonderful contribution! Another man invented a way to freeze fish quickly. It is used to take a day to freeze fish and much of their goodness was frozen out. This new method takes 40 minutes and allows shipment with wonderful ease.

And so one could go on with hundreds of examples of the contributions of brains to business.

There is plenty of opportunity.

All the families on the beach at Lake Margrethe from the Welsh to the Jerome cottage were hosts at a very pleasant affair on Sunday evening. The space including the Glat Michelson, Wolf and Kerry cottages was strung with lighted lanterns, centering the party around the Wolf pavilion where the 107th Medical Regiment band entertained the guests with a very splendid concert. Guests included General Wilson and his staff, several other officers and families and guests at headquarters, also other friends of the host families making a gathering of some 150 guests in all. Light refreshments were served and a very delightful evening spent.

Upon investigation by Sheriff Bob-benmeyer as to the cause of the fire that destroyed the garage in the rear of the Grayling bakery and damaged the public garage of the Corwin Auto Sales last Wednesday night, Ambrose Horning and George Craig were apprehended and made a confession as to how the fire started. The boys had been driving the Horning boys' Ford and had run out of gas and so went to the Craig garage to drain the gasoline out of the Stewart. They lit a match to see if the pump which they were draining the gas into, was full and it immediately ignited and caused the fire. The boys hearing it set for August 5th.

INVALID CHOOSES PONTIAC BIG SIX

Murphysboro Woman Says Car Meets Her Physician's Specifications

An invalid woman bedridden for six years by a spinal ailment which renders the nervous system sensitive to the slightest shock, now is seeking relaxation and health through daily rides in a Pontiac Big Six.

She is Mrs. Elmer W. Loos of 501 North Twenty-Second Street, Murphysboro, Ill., whose physician declared that her health might be improved by the mental stimulus of automobile riding. His recommendation was qualified, however, with the provision that his patient must ride in complete comfort. He warned that serious results would follow if Mrs. Loos were subjected to the jar of road irregularities or even the vibration of an unbalanced engine.

Mrs. Loos and her husband then let it be known that they were in the market for a low-priced automobile embodying the physician's specifications. They proved probably the most difficult "prospects" in the automotive history of Murphysboro. Many salesmen representing many automotive concerns called at the Loos home. But among all of the demonstrators the Pontiac Big Six, with its long springs and Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers, its big tires, its deep-cushioned seats and its harmoniously-balanced engine, proved best suited to Mrs. Loos' unusual needs.

"In choosing an automobile," said Mrs. Loos, "we had to consider factors which perhaps are not so necessary to well-to-do people, such as smooth-riding and brake action, absence of vibration, easy riding qualities, wide doors to reduce the effort of entering and leaving the car and low windows to enable me to see out while reclining on the rear seat. We found them in the Pontiac Big Six. Now I ride for hours in perfect ease and without fatigue. Our Pontiac has brought welcome relief from the monotony of four walls."

CHESTER

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

I don't know what Chester's last name is. I could have found out, but I was not curious enough to inquire. He got on the train at one of the Canadian summer places with an impetuosity and a furor which made us all aware of his coming and he remained with us until we reached Minneapolis. He was a well-dressed and well-set-up youngster of ten. I judge and if he had had any manners or had been taught any sort of self-control he would have been a very likable boy. He was apparently the only child of a prosperous-looking gentleman of sixty and a handsome woman considerably younger. I inferred that there were no other children in the family from the completeness with which he got what he wanted, disobeyed all verbal orders given to him, and disregarded the comfort and the rights of every one on the train.

Father and mother occupied a drawing room at the end of one of the cars but Chester seemed to feel that the whole train was his personal property. While his parents were quietly engaged in a friendly game of bridge with some acquaintances which they had picked up on the way, Chester roamed at large like a wild Texas steer turned loose in a public street. He went tearing up and down the aisles shouting and slamming the doors and tripping over feet and suitcases and paying no attention to anyone. He was quite at home wherever he went.

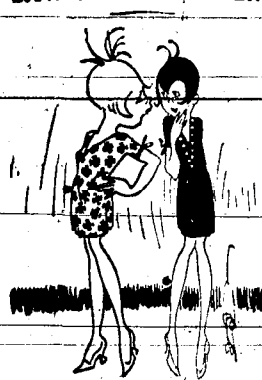

In the observation car where a number of people were trying to write or to read quietly, Chester moved constantly from one place to another, trying this chair and then that, looking at one magazine and then tossing it aside for another, and all the time he was making a great racket.

"Don't do that, Chester," his mother would occasionally say, but her warning seemed to act more as an incentive to further disturbance than as a deterrent. Chester had not yet learned the sound of his mother's voice. He went on as if nothing had been said to him.

At the table Chester bulked a good deal or ate as if the process were wholly to satisfy his appetite. Generally he did not like what was set before him and made derogatory comments on the menu. Father and mother took little notice of this attitude; they were evidently quite used to it and were neither surprised or shocked. Chester is the illustration of one sort of modern training of the young. He is being allowed to express his own personality, to develop without restraint. If he learns good manners, or modesty, or self-control, or selflessness, or regard for other people's comfort or personal rights, he will pick these things up himself through experience and hard knocks, and possibly through watching some one else whose example he thinks well of. If I may judge from the way he acted between Seattle and Minneapolis the parental restraining hand has not yet been laid on him.

HOW THE COCKROACH DESTROYS FOOD

As the wily cockroach passes over foodstuffs, and other materials, it leaves a vile odor that quickly contaminates anything with which it comes in contact. Food that the cockroach has touched should never be eaten.

This insect undoubtedly accounts for the loss of thousands of dollars worth of food each year, in addition to the embarrassment and annoyance of having them in the home. They can be eliminated by the use of a good insecticide, so that their continued presence is unnecessary.

Only one thing can break up a home quicker than a designing woman and that is the painters and paperhangers.

FAKE WARNING SIGNS MUST GO OFF HIGHWAY

Advertising signs which give motorists false impression of danger ahead are to be banished from Michigan highways, Grover C. Dillman has announced.

His decision follows an opinion handed down by the attorney general in which it was held that the highway department has sufficient power to affect the banishment.

Signs such as "STOP—Eat at Jake's Barbeque" and "SLOW Down for Gus at Smith's filling station" are to be removed from within the highway right of ways, Dillman said. Owners are to be asked to take them down and if the order is ignored the state will act, billing the owner for the cost.

MICHIGAN NOT SLOW

We respectfully beg to advise our fellow-citizens that Michigan is not slow. The state is already reaping dividends upon an improvement on its livestock for which the movement was begun less than a quarter of a century ago. Then Michigan was complaining of the low quality of its live stock. The predominant features of the herd when the "grades" and "crossbred cattle" were getting a large part of its high-grade beef supply from Texas ranges then. Since that time the Texas cattle have been depreciating in quality, and herdsman, bankers and good folks generally who have been interested in the betterment of their state have been bringing the quality of their cattle up. As a part of that process we learn that shipments of Michigan and Wisconsin cows are coming into that state weekly for this purpose. With better cows come better barns and dairy equipment, of the latter of which Michigan is also a producer. All of which goes to prove how the truth of the adage that God helps them who help themselves.

BUREAU EXECUTIVES MEET AT TOPINABEE

(By E. M. T. Service)

The annual mid-summer meeting of the executive committee of the North-Eastern Michigan Development Bureau was held at Hotel Topinabee, Topinabee, Michigan, Friday, July 19, with about 50 persons present from all sections of North-Eastern Michigan and guests from Chicago, Detroit and Jackson. The meeting, presided over by Herman N. Butler, East Tawas, president, followed a noon luncheon. Emphasis on dairying as the most stable of agricultural industries, the contribution of the tourist and resort industry to the prosperity of North-Eastern Michigan and supplementary subjects were discussed. Wives of the executives participated in the affair.

Addresses were made by Senator Calvin Campbell, Indian River; W. J. Anteliff, Jackson County; E. J. Hyer, Michigan Conservation Department, Lansing; E. J. Leenhouts, general agricultural agent, New York Central lines, west, Chicago; Roy H. B. Johnson, Clare; Harvey Chamberlain, Standish; Judge Isaac Foster, Gladwin; John Yuill, Vanderbilt; James R. Snody, Onaway; and Marius Hanson, Grayling. Reports of the activities of the North-Eastern Michigan Development Bureau were made by T. F. Marston, secretary-manager of the bureau; L. L. Drake, agricultural agent of the bureau; and Joe Dermody of the same organization.

Mr. Anteliff, Jackson County, declared that the agricultural development of North-Eastern Michigan interested other sections of the state because they were all affected by the prosperity of any particular section. He declared the members of the Bureau were pioneers, making life more livable for visitors and residents and the southern part of the state is benefiting thereby.

Mr. Chamberlain of Standish outlined an agricultural development in dairying sponsored by the Arenac County banking institution, and explained how an original investment of $50,000 by the bank in placing cattle on Arenac county farms, besides resulting in an industry that brought about a distribution of $90,000 to farmers each month had resulted in a loss of but $350 to the bank on its investment.

A proposed tour of 200 Ohio-Potomac growers into North-Eastern Michigan last month and the Silver Train over two North-Eastern Michigan railroads in September were outlined. Resolutions adopted unanimously endorsed both projects.

There was a discussion regarding a change in the customary procedure in connection with the annual meeting of the Bureau. Regarding a suggestion that the meeting of the Bureau be held in the morning instead of the afternoon of the fourth Thursday in October, the matter was left to the decision of the president and managers.

THE FARMER IS AIR-MINDED

By Erwin Greer

(President Greer, College of Aviation, Chicago, Ill.)

Did you know that the farmers of the United States are among America's most consistent flyers? Well, they are, if only it is believed statistics recently compiled by aircraft manufacturers. As these are not hard facts run up by the sales registers of airplane agencies, why one must believe.

Of 4,761 planes sold, from March, 1928 to March 1929, 1,043 planes went to rural owners. Last year the National Air Races held in Los Angeles last September, 111 planes were sold, 53 of which went to ranchers and farmers.

The significance of the foregoing facts has not been recognized in the general rush of aircraft progress in the United States. The steady advance in the construction and number of municipal and private airports in this country has found many champions, but there has not yet been forthcoming an analysis of just how modern aeronautics has been affecting rural industries.

In a way, it might be expected that the airplane would prove of great utility to widely separated communities and that ranchers and rural community business men would find it of more constant service than those whose interests are closely bound up in the congested business circles of cities. It is a pertinent correlation to the country's major flying services, such as the air mail, urban aerial taxi planes and the activities of individuals and companies operating from municipal and other urban airports, that much of the actual flying has been done over rural territory.

The result of this has been to place above the farmers and ranchers of the nation a great sky panorama advertising the airplane, with the natural consequence that the farmer has become one of the best customers of the aircraft companies. The restrictions, which so many cities have made concerning flying over their environs, have helped to cause, in great degree, the intense surge of interest in and utilization of, aircraft in the sparsely settled territories.

BUILDING HIGHWAYS FOR THE FUTURE

So rapid has been the development of automobile travel in this country that many highways built but a comparatively few years ago are outmoded and dangerous.

As a result progressive sections are building for the future. Low cost pavements are being constructed, wide enough for several cars abreast, with banked turns and mathematical grades.

There is no place with our modern 50-mile-an-hour cars for 20-mile-an-hour highways. The roads of today must be built with an eye on the years to come.

CAUSE OF ANGLES

"Very angular, isn't she?"
"Guess you'd be angular too if you'd been mixed in all the triangles she has."

HIS BIG TROUBLE

She—I've forgotten more than you even know.
He—I was wondering what was the matter with you.

WOMAN IN SPEECH

She—What part of speech is a woman?
He—An indefinite article.

SIMPLE MATTER

First College Boy—Gee, Bill, but I'd like to get out of debt!
Second, Ditto—Aw, that's a cliche! Just borrow the money that you owe from the Governor.

NOT MUCH TO TELL

He—If I told all I know about you I could cause some stir.
She—If you told all you know about me and everything else you know, it wouldn't cause a ripple.

AN ANALYSIS

"That man surely has been a success in life."
"Well, as a golfer he certainly has plenty of the abilities."

The Secret of Success

The talent of success is nothing more than doing what you can do well, and doing well whatever you do. Without a thought of fame, if it comes at all, it will come because it is deserved, not because it is sought after; and, moreover, there will be no mistaking it—no disappointment—no hurry, feverish, exhausting excitement.—Longfellow.

Ralph Waldo Emerson Child of Merry Month

The month of May brought this country some men who were in the humor. It brought to a house in Summer street, Boston, from whose windows could be heard the tinkling of cowbells and could be seen stately rows of elm trees and Lombardy poplars, a baby boy, the fourth child of the minister of the First church. This child grew up "in an atmosphere of letters, quite apart by himself." He was a spiritual looking boy in blue nankeen, who found more favor with his elders than with those of his own age. He was serious, but he was not solemn.

Like his father, he became a minister, but resigned his pulpit after a few years, because he felt cramped in spirit by the orthodoxy of the day. He went to live in Concord and was called a sage. A sage he still is, and there are very few people the world over who have not read some of Ralph Waldo Emerson's teachings.

How little he would have sympathized with the "Puritans of Puritans" who struck down the Maypole in 1629! For this is what he says of beauty:

"All privilege is that of beauty. The question of beauty takes us out of surfaces of thinking of the foundations of things. Beauty is the quality which makes to endure." And he quotes copiously from the Greeks to illustrate. From the pagan Greeks! What a long road he had traveled, compared with the United path in which Governor Endicott solemnly took his way—the change.

Jungle Monarchs Lose Ferocity in Daylight

Many of the jungle animals bearing reputations for ferocity are exceedingly timid during the daytime. A resident of India studying in this country is authority for this statement and he says that he has repeatedly approached lions or tigers at a distance of 50 yards and instead of attacking him they have slunk away. At night, however, the situation is quite different. These animals seem to become emboldened by the dark. Elephants rarely attack a man unless provoked. A native forester riding over one of the paths through a jungle accidentally collided with a cub elephant, whereupon the enraged mother seized the forester and, after tearing him to pieces. Ordinarily the elephants will flee at the approach of a human or even if they detect the odor of a human. The elephant's eye is poor, but his sense of smell is marvellously keen.

Flags of the Confederacy

There were four Confederate flags. The first was suggested by a committee of six persons of the Confederate congress. This flag did not meet with the approval of the people, as it too closely resembled the Union emblem. The second flag was designed by Edward C. Hancock in October, 1861. But as this was a battle flag it was not satisfactory, as the people wished a national emblem in addition to one for battle. On May 1, 1863, the Confederate congress selected the third flag. This also was disapproved for two reasons: The first, because it had too much white and resembled the flag of France, and second, because it was too similar to the Russian ensign. Finally on May 4, 1864, the national Confederate flag was approved.

Names of Cloud Formations

The idea of giving names to various kinds of cloud formation was first attempted in the early part of the Nineteenth century by a man named Lamarck, but his terms were not well chosen. A simpler form was devised about 1868 by Luke Howard, which seemed to answer the purpose and was generally accepted. Howard classified clouds according to their appearance, recognizing three primary types—cirrus, cumulus and stratus—and four derivative, or compound forms—cirro-cumulus, cirro-stratus, cumulo-stratus and cumulo-cirrus or nimbus. Thus he defined seven varieties.

Bad News

Jenkins married, and in due course his wife presented him with a son. His friends flocked round to tender their congratulations and, incidentally, smoke Bill's cigars.

Jones was on his way to the house when he met Browning returning.

"Where are you going?" asked the latter.

"Oh, I'm just going round to see Bill and wish him luck with that youngster of his."

"Then you're too late!"

"What?" Surely it hasn't died?

"No, the youngster's all right, but the cigar box is empty."—Pittsburgh Sun Telegraph.

Camels in Australia

Many camels are used in Australia as beasts of burden. For instance, from Wyndham in northwestern Australia the cattle stations are served by camel trains which carry supplies for hundreds of miles into the interior.

"The camels are driven by Afghans," says the National Geographic society. "Camel teams are familiar sights in the streets of the little townships, hauling in the great waddles of freewood from the outlying district. The first camels were brought to Australia for the use of the early explorers. Later a fine type of dromedary was imported for breeding purposes."

Inside Information

A ring mold may be very easily contrived to take the place of the regular ring mold. Place a glass fruit jar in a round bowl. Fill the jar with ice or ice water. Pour the gelatin mixture into the space around the jar. When firm, remove ice from the jar and pour warm, not hot, water into the jar, take out carefully.

Meat salads are improved if the meat is marinated with French dressing, that is, if it is allowed to stand in French dressing in a cold place for an hour. The excess dressing should be drained off before the mayonnaise dressing is added.

A wire corn popper is a convenient utensil for boiling frankfurters. They may be placed in the popper and shaken around until they are nicely browned.

French toast makes a nice change from regular toast to serve with the creamed meat dish.

The waterless cooker or Dutch oven is ideal for cooking less tender cuts of meat. A very small flame is required and so this type of utensil may be used to advantage in the summertime.

Only fruits and tomatoes should be canned in the water bath. All non-acid vegetables and other foods should be processed under steam pressure. In cutting out a dress make the back should seem to be longer than the front and ease the extra fullness on to the front. Make this allowance whether the pattern gives it or not.

To whip cream successfully in warm weather, it is well to chill the cream, bowl, and whipper before you begin. Cream for whipping should contain at least 30 per cent butterfat, aged 24 hours or more.

Salmon loaf is a good summer dish because canned salmon can be obtained almost anywhere, and the kitchen will not be beset for very long in making it. Drain the oil from a can of salmon and pick out all bones and skin. Break the meat into fairly small pieces. Add an equal amount of soft bread crumbs from the center of a loaf. Add 2 well-beaten eggs, salt, pepper, chopped parsley, and enough milk to moisten—about 1/2 cup. Place in a greased baking dish, mold into a loaf, and bake in a moderate oven until brown.

Don't stay on a sinking ship. Jump!

The Care of Your Money

GAMBLING, SPECULATION AND INVESTMENT

Money is made to earn more money in three ways: by gambling, speculation and investment.

To take care of your money so that it will take care of you, it is advisable to invest your funds; to speculate only rarely; and not to gamble at all.

Gambling is mere chance—the risking of money or wealth on any event over which one has absolutely no control. Matching coins, shaking dice, playing cards, betting on horses and games, is pure gambling.

The business of stock or margin with the idea of selling them again within a few days at a profit is a dangerous form of gambling. Intelligent gambling, careful scrutiny of probabilities may enrich one, but the time being, he experiences losses that continue gambling usually ruins a man.

As was stated many years ago: "On the strictest mathematical principles, a man who continues to stake constant sums in a fair wager, must expect to be ruined in the end."

There is nothing more of a probability of gain in speculation than in gambling, because a sound speculation is supposed to involve investigation, careful study and some intelligence. The "so-called" speculator is not a gambler in so far as he has a certain knowledge and control of the forces involved. And then, the speculator usually speculates in a businesslike way while the gambler risks his funds in the spirit of sport. The desire for gain motivates the speculator. The attraction of uncertainty leads the gambler on.

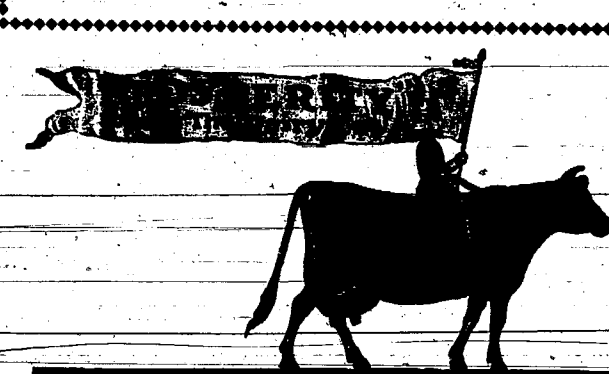

Investing is the ideal method of making money earn more money, because all risk as far as possible is eliminated and safety is stressed above all else. Investing "is the placing of money in a form where it will be protected against risk and loss, where it will return a regular, definite income and where the investor may also recover the principal invested." Money wisely and safely invested grows at a remarkably rapid rate and assures an income that makes for financial comfort in later years.

Because safety is the premier essential of investing, good bonds are the ideal investment security. The safety that is in good bonds is the reason why wise men and experienced investors, wealthy men, banks and life insurance companies buy bonds.

It should be obvious that small salaries, financially inexperienced persons cannot afford to speculate, since they are in no way fitted to take the risks involved. They should look first and only to safety and regular income.

(If you have any financial questions to ask, write to Investment Institute, Chicago, will be glad to answer them without obligation on your part.)

Mr. Cushman, caretaker was late that night getting everybody settled and comfortable for the night. New lights similar to the boulevard lights downtown have been placed at the entrance to the park.

TO EXHIBIT AT MAPLE FOREST AND BEAVER CREEK

The Handy-Kitchen demonstration truck belonging to Michigan State College at Lansing will visit Crawford county communities Tuesday, July 30th.

This truck will demonstrate convenient arrangements for kitchens and also convenient, inexpensive kitchen conveniences.

While these demonstrations are principally planned for agricultural districts they also are applicable for homes where modern conveniences are not already in use. The demonstration will be conducted by Miss Edna Smith of the Department of Home Economics of Michigan State College.

In conjunction with the demonstration of kitchen arrangement and conveniences, Mr. Edger of the college will demonstrate water systems and septic tanks and how to get them at little cost.

The "Handy Kitchen Truck" will be at Sherman's corner in Maple Forest township at 9:30 o'clock in the forenoon of July 30th. At 2:00 o'clock of the same afternoon it will be at Beaver Creek town hall. On Wednesday, July 31st it will exhibit at the Clark House grounds at Roscommon. Everyone, especially farmers families, are requested to attend at least one of these exhibits. Each of the three above places are easily reached by those residing in their respective communities.

Today it is different. Due to repeated campaigns warning travelers to be careful. They know the moment of the oftentimes pays the dividends. As long as roads crossings remain there will always be danger—but you can almost wholly eliminate that by being careful.

BOARD OF TRADE GIVES GOOD- WILL SUPPER

Staff Officers Of Camp Grayling
Guests

An informal and very pleasant complement was extended Gen. Wilson and his staff of Camp Grayling by Grayling Board of Trade when they were served a banquet at Michelson Memorial church Wednesday noon.

There were 80 officers and about an equal number of local business men to sit down to a very fine dinner.

The food had been prepared by "George and Martha" chefs at the Hanson dining hall at Lake Margrethe. "They certainly know how to fry chicken." It was served by ladies of Michelson Memorial church.

This was just a "good-will" dinner and not intended for speech-making.

T. W. Hanson, president of the board, gave the guests to understand that the people of Grayling appreciated the local citizens and the officers.

Major Gen. Guy M. Wilson replied that some of the older officers of the Guard had found at some training camps that often the feeling between the people and the guards was antagonistic, but that at Grayling the spirit is ideal and pleasant.

Just prior to coming to the dinner the officers met with Mayor Olsen and the members of the council at the Board of Trade club rooms and informally discussed matters pertaining to the welfare of all concerned. The meeting was mutually enjoyable and appreciated.

The auto has one advantage over the aeroplane. It doesn't need a special landing field. Any old ditch will do if you are in too big a hurry.

WOULD CORRECT "23 YEARS AGO" COLUMN

(The following from Mrs. Peter McNeven of Bay City and formerly of Grayling claims incorrect some of the items appearing in the Avalanche "23 Years Ago" column. Assisted by Secretary M. A. Bates of the school Board we investigated the points in question to which Mrs. McNeven refers and find that the list of teachers was correct at the time of publication but that on July 27 Miss Lantz resigned and Miss Baker was hired in her place and later Miss Grandall resigned and Miss McFarland took her place.—Ed.)

Bay City, Mich.

July 17, 1929

Dear Friends of the Avalanche: In your columns of "Interesting Events in Grayling 23 Years Ago" July 12, 1906—I noted with particular interest those concerning school affairs. That happened to be the year that I appeared on the scene as Winifred Baker, and was hired for the sixth grade. If Miss Lantz had been previously hired for that job, she did not appear to my knowledge, so there was no dispute about the position.

Furthermore, Miss Pearl Place taught the eighth grade instead of Miss Pym, and Miss Gladys MacFarland taught second grade instead of Miss Grandall.

I might call your attention to the fact that later three of this staff succeeded also in adopting the names of three Grayling young men. Miss Amy Irving became Mrs. Frank Jorgenson and is now living at 2308 Sorrento St., Detroit. Miss MacFarland became Mrs. Joseph Pym and Miss Baker was willing to change such a commonplace name to McNeven. The latter named broke the record in retaining her residence in Grayling the longest—nearly twenty years. Supt. Bradley is the only one of that staff deceased.

Miss Josephine Russell who taught first grade in Grayling something near twenty years is at present in Honolulu visiting her brother who is an instructor there in a university. We believe she is taking some work in the university.

Miss Roeder married a Mr. Gunterman and resides in Bay City.

Miss Ohlson married an instructor in Ferris Institute several years ago—do not know her name. Neither do we know Miss Marie Redhead's name since she changed it; she lives in Colorado.

Miss Nellie Hoyt married a Gaylord young man, Mr. Dell Shetler, and still lives in Gaylord.

As to Mr. Carl Grawn, we imagine he is the one who is listed as lawyer in the Detroit directory, office over Dime Bank Bldg.

Mr. McNeven and I visited Frank and Amy Jorgenson very recently in their new home in Detroit. We took great pleasure in talking over old times that we enjoyed while we were in Grayling.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Peter McNeven.

GIVES SERUM TO MERCY HOSPITAL

H. I. Shepherd of Cleveland, who, with his family is occupying his cottage at Whip-poor-will Club on the Ausable, did a very fine thing when he presented two units of anti-venom serum to use in treatment of persons who have been bitten by venomous snakes. One of these is to be reserved for his family and the other for whomsoever may need it.

This is a new serum that has just been developed and is one of the best things that has been discovered in medicine for some time. Mr. Shepherd says that he has done this in appreciation of service that is afforded the public by Mercy Hospital especially for resorters and tourists who come to this region. Mr. Shepherd has taken quite a personal interest in Grayling and when asked his opinion as to the greatest need in Grayling he replied, "Paint." There are many homes in Grayling that would be very attractive if they were repainted and painted. He says that many people should be able to do their own painting.

Capt. Philip Pack of Ann Arbor of the 83rd Brigade is happy over a fine large mouth four-pound black bass that he landed at Lake Margrethe Wednesday afternoon. In the boat with him was Captain Corey Spencer of Jackson and we guess it is a standoff as to which was the most tickled over the catch. A four-pound bass, while not rare in Lake Margrethe, is still a regular whale of a fish.

MOTOR OILS STURDY AND RICH

Iso-Vis

THE new type motor oil, Iso-Vis, is the sensation of the motoring world. This superb motor oil has the remarkable property of constant viscosity. It will not thin out! It will not wear out. It maintains its body under all normal driving conditions.

When you fill up your crankcase with Iso-Vis you can motor with an easy mind—knowing that you'll have no trouble from dilution in the crankcase—sure that your engine will be protected with proper lubrication every mile.

Iso-Vis avoids the necessity of frequent crankcase changes. Many motorists drive for 1000 miles or more without changing oil. Iso-Vis maintains its viscosity. It wears and wears and WEARS!

Polarine

THE engine in your car needs a rich sturdy oil to protect its bearings. Driving conditions are harder—you drive faster—you drive farther—and traffic congestion puts a strain on the engine.

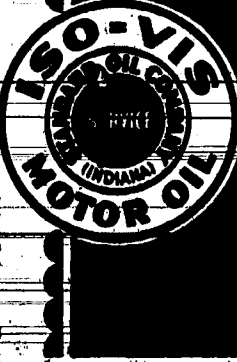

Polarine meets the engine needs of today. Polarine is sturdy! Polarine is rich! Polarine is dependable.

When you have Polarine in the crankcase you may be sure that the engine is properly lubricated—that every bearing surface is covered with a protecting cushion of oil.

Use the grade made for your car. Drain and refill with fresh Polarine every 500 miles. You'll save your car—and you'll motor untroubled miles!

Polarine and Iso-Vis are money-saving, driver-saving, car-saving motor oils. Buy the grade made for your car.
